The Optional Play - Peer Gynt by Henrik Ibsen

Hungry and restless, Peer Gynt is addicted to instant gratification and driven by an increasingly desperate search for meaning. But in a world where identity is commodity and greed is God, what really is the price we pay for individual freedom?

The Visits

Berkley Castle The Berkeley family welcome you to Berkeley Castle, their ancient fortress home where they have lived since their ancestor, Robert Fitzharding, completed the Keep in the late 12th Century. The history played out within Berkeley Castle's walls make it one of the most remarkable buildings in Britain. Butterfly House; Walled Garden; Gertrude Jekyll gardens. Yurt Tea rooms

Fursdon House has evolved from a modest cob and thatch dwelling to the elegant Georgian manor house you see today. The family has lived on this site near Exeter since 1259 and continue to live here today! A tour of this historic house reflects the evolution and fluctuating fortunes of a family steeped in the tradition of land ownership and farming. An experienced guide will show you rooms dating from different periods in history, Our museum reflects this long history and some fine examples of 18th and 19th century family costumes are displayed. The fabrics and costumes on show are changed each year Over the last 35 years we have developed, redesigned and extended the gardens at Fursdon so that we are now able to share them with visitors. There is a mix of formal and informal planting with lots of places to sit and enjoy the extensive views and appreciate the tranquillity of the Devon countryside.
